HOW ARMY POLITICAL LEADERS ARE INSTRUCTED.

Y

Yesterday the first seminar of the army divisional and regimental political leaders was completed in the Army Officers Club. In this connection the political leader of the Army, Bruno Kalnins, made the following remarks: The number of political leaders in the army has been set to 73, and they all will be distributed throughout the army - divisions, regiments, battalions, administrative units, officers schools, etc. It has been decided to conduct seminars for these leaders in the Officers Club once a week - on Wednesdays in order to discuss future assignments. An outline of political instruction has been prepared with 15 questions which are to be discussed in the army units during the classes.

The discussions in the first seminar were on state authority, Latvia's admission into the Soviet Union, and on the decisions of the Saeima. As far as textbooks are concerned, I must say that we did not have any, and we have simply used current newspaper articles. I have ordered a translation into Latvian of the Political textbook of the Red Army, the first part of which will appear within ten days and will be available in all bookstores.
